LIBERAL PARTY TO HONOR PREMIER KING AT BANQUET: 20 YEARS PARTY LEADER

Prime Minister's Moves Keenly Watched By Rival Parties—May Make Announcement
at Coming Elections

OTTAWA, Aug. 7.—Prime Minister Mackenzie King leaves tonight for Toronto, where the Liberal party will honor him Tuesday night at a banquet celebrating the 20th anniversary of his selection as national Liberal leader.

Other parties also eye the Toronto festival with interest, since it is anticipated the Prime Minister might, in the course of a speech to Liberal stalwarts, make some general announcement on the next general elections.

While Mr. King has already said that the troubled situation in Europe has a great bearing on election plans here, there has been a growing conviction on Parliament Hill that the government will go to the country in the autumn barring an outbreak of hostilities abroad.

Would Hesitate To Dissolve Parliament

It is doubted that Mr. King will announce the actual polling date on Tuesday, however, as it could hardly be made without simultaneous dissolution of parliament. The dissolution order is executed by the Governor-General, and Lord Tweedsmuir is off on an extensive tour.

If European tension grows critical, Mr. King would hesitate to dissolve parliament, since the Houses might be called upon, in case of war, to meet and decide Canada's course.

When the Toronto celebration is over, Mr. King will return to the capital for an important conference here Thursday with Premier Duplessis of Quebec and a delegation of Quebec mayors. They will discuss Quebec's unemployment relief problems.

Turn Attention To Numerous Vacancies

After the unemployment conference, Mr. King is expected to turn his attention to consideration of the numerous vacancies in the House of Parliament and in the government's services. Parliamentary vacancies have now increased to nine in the Senate and five in the House of Commons, while a large number of administrative posts remain to be filled by Prime Minister Mackenzie King and his government.

Death of Hon. Fernand Robitaille, secretary of state, brought the House of Commons vacancies to five and made a break in cabinet ranks. A second portfolio may be vacated at any time, since resignation of Hon. Charles Dunning, minister of

Nipponese Fliers Accused In Raids

"Most charming" Britishers call this the year's best picture of Queen Elizabeth. It was taken recently as Her Majesty arrived at Grove House, near London, for a garden party. She wears an ankle-length gown with a bolero, trimmed with embroidery, a hat trimmed to match her gown and a feather boa.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 7.—First time accused the Japanese are making a premeditated attack on British interests in air raids yesterday at Ichang, in which two British steamships were destroyed with the death of four crewmen, and injury of five and property of the Asiatic Petroleum Company was damaged. Ichang is more than 1,000 miles up the Yangtze river from Shanghai. A strong British protest was lodged with Admiral Kurohara Ohtsuna, commander of the Japanese naval forces in China waters, who said he was sending it to the Japanese government. "We have no information. It is, however, it is a regrettable mistake."

SHANGHAI, Aug. 7.—A new anti-French campaign at Tientsin and confiscation of British crematoriums, hospitals and schools in Honan province were predicted today by the Japanese press.

The Japanese blockade of the British and French concessions at Tientsin, after 53 days, was reported to have cut off virtually all meat and fish from the British zone.

British critics in Shanghai, meanwhile, marked up as anti-British manifestations Japanese raids in which two British steamships were destroyed in the Yangtze river near Ichang, with the death of three crewmen and the injury of three, including one Canadian.

The Canadian, H. J. Denyer, chief officer of the Hsin Chang was one of the missing ship, was seen only slightly when he was struck.

MOTHER TAKES LIFE DESPITE PLEA OF SON

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—With tears in his eyes, a 12-year-old son of a mother who had just been told that her husband had been killed in action, pleaded with his mother not to take her own life. The mother, however, said she was going to die with her husband.

Early today, while the family slept, Mrs. Knickerbocker, 42, took a bottle of cyanide and put it in her mouth. Her husband, a pilot, had been killed in action. The mother, who was a nurse, said she was going to die with her husband.

Washington Aides Think Alaska Road Plans Are Advanced

By H. G. LYON
United Press, Exclusive To The Edmonton Bulletin

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—Government officials today expressed the belief that recent negotiations with Canada have "very considerably advanced" plans for a $250,000,000 international highway from the United States to Fairbanks, Alaska.

One official said he felt the proposal may reach the stage by the beginning of the year permitting congress to consider a definite measure authorizing the project.

An American commission last week met with a Canadian delegation at Victoria, B.C., and later made an airplane survey of several suggested routes for the 1,200 mile road.

Although plans are now in a very indefinite stage, officials said, it is probable that each country would finance the portion of the road over its own territory.

Officials said the attitude of the Canadian people has shifted noticeably in favor of the project in recent years. The international air-freight relations between the two nations, and in addition, there is increased feeling that the highway would increase tourist travel from the north Canadian province into the United States and provide better access to the rich north Canadian mineral region.

American members of a special commission congress authorized to examine the project are expected to make an informal report on their findings to Canadian officials soon. It is that report they probably will outline the route this country would prefer.

PITTMAN GIVES

By BOSS MUNRO

BOUCHEVILLE, Que., Aug. 7.—Canada and Britain co-operated today to trace a 50-hour empire airline from Europe to the Pacific coast. Climbing five years careful planning, the aerial bond between the Dominion and the Mother Country finally was fastened at this dreary French-Canadian town late yesterday, when the flying boat Caribou landed on the St. Lawrence river after a 23-hour flight from Newfoundland.

BRITISH AIR SERVICE OVER PACIFIC SEEN

Negotiations Underway
For Route From Vancouver
To Auckland

AUCKLAND, N.Z., Aug. 7.—Negotiations which have been in progress for some time between the British, Canadian, Australian and New Zealand governments for a British air service across the Pacific, are likely to result in a survey flight shortly over the southern routes from the route from Auckland to New Zealand.

Pan-American Airways is almost ready to resume its Pacific service from San Francisco to Auckland and this doubtless has speeded up the British plans.

The proposed British service from Vancouver to Auckland, linking up there with the English-Australian Empire flying boat service, which will be extended across the Tasman sea from Sydney to Auckland in September.

The first survey flight to Fiji is likely to be made with the flying boat Antares. This is one of three Empire flying boats specially strengthened for a long trans-Pacific crossing and is due to New Zealand shortly.

Most work of work of Pan-American in the Pacific islands has been done by New Zealand naval vessels in the past two years. Plans are now sufficiently advanced for aerial surveys to begin.

Potentially Worth $1,500 A Day, Girl Is Looking For Job

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—A girl who potentially, at least, is worth $1,500 a day was around town looking for a job today. Until she married the late Potter O'Day Palmer, one heir to a multi-million-dollar fortune and victim of a socially important Chicagoan, she was a waitress.

"And as I have said before, I am still a 'good waitress,' I declared plump Louise Palmer.

She now is a girl of some kind, she insisted. Her potential inheritance is frozen in the courts at the moment, and I haven't got a cent," she said.

Two days ago, her attorney in Savannah, Fla., notified her, for $300,000 damages against her father-in-law, Potter Palmer, charging that he had "ought to bring her into public scandal" by his attempt to have her removed as administratrix of his son's estate.

The income from that fortune, left in trust by his grandmother, Mrs. Potter Palmer, has been estimated as high as $1,500 a day or about $500,000 a year.

CHILDREN OF DEPORTED MAN ALLOWED ENTRY

HALIFAX, Aug. 7.—A Canadian-born father recently deported from the United States for illegal entry said today that four of his children, left in the United States because they were born there, will be allowed permission by Dominion authorities to enter Canada.

Jack McNeil, his wife, and a son and daughter born in Canada were separated from the other four children a month ago when they were deported from the United States.

The four children were left in Los Angeles when McNeil was deported. McNeil said the children in Los Angeles would come here as soon as transportation could be arranged.

Chamberlain Off On His Fishing Trip

LONDON, Aug. 7.—Prime Minister Chamberlain left Sunday for Scotland where he hopes to spend the greater part of August indulging in his favorite sport, fishing. He was accompanied by Mrs. Chamberlain.

That was Saturday. The mother smiled at him, patted his head, "I was only fishing," she said.

"You boy," she said, "you were fishing what had happened, and they kept a good record."

There are five Senate vacancies in Quebec, two in Ontario and one each in Manitoba and Alberta. All the Commons vacancies are in ridings which elected Liberals in the last election, with the exception of Calgary West where a by-election has already been called for Sept. 23 because of the statutory limit of six months for the length of time a seat may remain vacant.

AT PENITENTIARIES

Chief among the administrative posts to be filled are the penitentiary commission of three, chairman of the federal board of penitentiaries, and the lieutenant-governor of Quebec.

It is believed that Inspector G. J. Sauvage, who has been acting as superintendent of penitentiaries, will be a member, if not head, of the penitentiary commission. It has also been rumored that Mr. J. M. Macdonald, Liberal member for Yorkton, may be appointed to that body.

NAMED PROMINENTLY

For the Senate vacancies named prominently mentioned include C. C. Elliott, former governor of the province who resigned his portfolio because of ill health; Arthur Beaumont, Liberal member for Prince George; B. Howard, Liberal member for Sherbrooke; and F. J. Fard, Liberal member for Lethbridge.

Eugene Flavel, member for Rimouski and one time deputy of the prime minister, is expected to be a candidate for the Senate.

Manion Challenges Prime Minister King

PORT WILLIAM, Aug. 7.—Prime Minister Mackenzie King has been told today a challenge from Conservative Leader R. J. Manion to tell the country in his Toronto speech next Tuesday night whether there is to be an election this fall.

Mr. Manion thinks the Conservative leader is "afraid" of the result of an election but regardless of that he is not present uncertainly over the imminence of an election is having no effect on his attitude.

At the same time Dr. Manion would like to hear Mr. King explain Tuesday night just what happened in the promise the Liberal leader made in the 1925 general election which, Dr. Manion claims, have not been carried out.

"I'd like to hear Mr. King explain next Tuesday why no leadership has been given this country for the last four years," the national Conservative leader declared here yesterday as he accepted the unanimous nomination of Fort William Conservatives for the next federal election.

Civil Liberties Union Asks Government Grant For Muni Taub Appeal

TELFORD PLANS TWELVE CHARGES AGAINST FOSTER

MONTREAL, Aug. 7.—Montreal branch of the Canadian Civil Liberties Union made public Sunday text of a letter sent to the Governor General in Council, asking a Dominion government grant to authorize to enable Muni Taub of Montreal to appeal his conviction against a superior court judgment upholding charges against him of conducting Quebec's "padlock law."

The union branch, in the letter sent Sunday, said that in its search for ways and means of financing Taub's appeal it has discovered precedents exist for the granting by the Dominion government of direct financial aid to persons in the hearing of two convictions charged with sedition in a matter of public safety.

Shortly after noon a meeting announced the nature of his charges Saturday, a summons was issued by the Dominion government to appear in the hearing of two convictions charged with sedition in a matter of public safety.

TELFORD PLANS TWELVE CHARGES AGAINST FOSTER

MONTREAL, Aug. 7.—Montreal branch of the Canadian Civil Liberties Union made public Sunday text of a letter sent to the Governor General in Council, asking a Dominion government grant to authorize to enable Muni Taub of Montreal to appeal his conviction against a superior court judgment upholding charges against him of conducting Quebec's "padlock law."

The union branch, in the letter sent Sunday, said that in its search for ways and means of financing Taub's appeal it has discovered precedents exist for the granting by the Dominion government of direct financial aid to persons in the hearing of two convictions charged with sedition in a matter of public safety.

Shortly after noon a meeting announced the nature of his charges Saturday, a summons was issued by the Dominion government to appear in the hearing of two convictions charged with sedition in a matter of public safety.

A Great Anniversary

In the gallery of statesmen who have been the architects of Canada's greatness the present prime minister is sure to hold an honored and conspicuous place. For twenty years, crowded with events, he has presided with matchless skill and unexampled success over the destinies of the party which he has forged into an unique instrument for the advancement of the public good. Tomorrow in Toronto men and women from all parts of Canada will gather on the occasion of the twentieth anniversary of his election as Liberal leader in the Dominion, to testify to the affection and regard felt for his name by his fellow-citizens. Their tribute will add another laurel to his garland of fame.

There is something almost breath-taking in the sweep and grandeur of Rt. Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King's personal achievements.

He was the worthy antagonist of Sir Robert Borden. His skill in debate and genius for statement of a public issue won admiration from so acknowledged a master of both as Arthur Meighen, who many a time has been the victim of Mr. King's talents. His calmness and steady faith is guiding our national destiny. Not least among Mr. King's services is the impetus he lent to Canada's growth into a sovereign state. The ties of empire mean much to him. But he feels that the empire can survive only on a basis of equality between nations. He has been freely co-operating together under the common unity of the crown. His tenures of office steadily have added impressive powers to Canada until today her undoubted national sovereignty is an accomplished fact.

But this success, far from tainting the man, has actually ennobled and enriched his character. He has dedicated himself to the endless adventure which comes to any man who strives to make democracy an instinct of life as well as an ideal of government. He has never stopped learning, never stopped trying to perfect his mastery of the processes of freedom. Victory is his habit, justice his philosophy, and to do good his religion.

He has made mistakes. He has sometimes chosen the wrong policy and taken the wrong turning. These have been passing errors of judgment, mere spots on the sun. Of Mr. Mackenzie King we should say that A. G. Gardiner wrote of John Morley: "He may occasionally have been on the wrong side; he never has been on the side of wrong."

Tuesday night all Canada will salute a great Canadian who has made this country better by the way he has lived.

A Retrospect

The convention which selected Mr. King as Liberal leader, on August 7, 1919, was an epochal one. For the first time in Canadian political history, a young man, a leader was chosen not by the members of his party in parliament, but by an open and representative convention of Canadians, in full gaze of the public. A great democrat, Mr. King was called to his high office by a truly democratic vote. The Montreal Gazette, the Tory cause, the Western Mail, the Toronto Star and the Western Mail, all praised Mr. King's selection as Liberal leader. It thought he was an untalented man who could not bring his party to power. "The Union government whose fortunes of late have been rather less bright than could have been desired," it wrote after the convention had picked Mr. King, "may have reason to congratulate itself on the choice of the general who is to command the forces fighting against it." The editor who wrote that deserves a prize for having coined the most amazing inaccurate prophecy ever given in Canada.

The Edmonton Bulletin, it may be said with excusable pride, was on this question much wiser. Writing on the day after Mr. Mackenzie King had been chosen leader of the Liberal party, the editor of this paper declared:

"In Mr. Mackenzie King the delegates to the National Liberal convention chose as leader a man comparatively young but with parliamentary and administrative experience beyond his years, a man of clean reputation, of progressive tendencies of thought, of aggressive but likeable personal traits, and with the indispensable talent to present his views in a way to gain adherents."

That the leader will have the enthusiastic support of Liberals of all sections is apparent from the circumstances under which he was chosen. He did not in any sense inherit the place, nor obtain it by manipulation. He was the free and deliberate choice of delegates representing all walks of the Dominion and Liberals in all parts of life."

A Courageous National Leader

Yet it would be a libel upon Mr. King to hint that his glory rests upon his success as a party leader. For him, leadership of the Liberal party has been important only as a means of serving the best interests of Canada's national welfare.

Four main principles have animated his public life—a passion for conciliation in preference to compulsion, an unwavering respect for the rights of parliament and the privileges of minorities, the maintenance of the creative unity of Canada, and the desire to see the Dominion attain to the status of full and independent nationhood.

As minister of labor, he wrote many of the basic statutes now governing the industrial life of this country, as well as settling by his personal mediation no less than forty major strikes. Any repressive measures against the just interests of trade unions and labor have found in him an unrelenting foe.

Not even Sir Wilfrid Laurier had as profound a regard for the powers of parliament as Mr. Mackenzie King. He sees it, as Burke did, as both the image and the oracle of the people's will, and therefore entitled to the utmost respect. With every fibre of his being he believes in democracy as the ideal state. He cannot see how there can be any good government that is not based upon self-government.

Unity and moderation, he once said, were the twin watchwords of Laurier. The preservation of unity by the exercise of moderation may be described as his own. At this anxious hour in Canada's history, when voices raucous with a disruptive gospel echo through the land, it is the impetus he lent to Canada's growth into a sovereign state. The ties of empire mean much to him. But he feels that the empire can survive only on a basis of equality between nations. He has been freely co-operating together under the common unity of the crown. His tenures of office steadily have added impressive powers to Canada until today her undoubted national sovereignty is an accomplished fact.

What of the Future?

Mr. Mackenzie King is only 64 years old. If fortune is not churlish, he should still have before him many years of creative and valued service. He is to lead his party again in the next election. All the signs point to him leading it once more to victory.

Even his political opponents readily admit that Mr. King, towering in the splendor of his public achievements, holds an unexampled place in the life of Canada.

Without rancour, without bitterness, without abuse, he has won and kept an undisputed primacy in the eyes of his right hand he has carried quiet peace and with it silenced venomous tongues. He is the first gentleman in the land, and his name shall endure forever in the memory of a grateful Canada.

The Passing Show

By J. S. COWPER

If you wait long enough, you usually find out things. Shapiro, the Jewish-Graube of Hollywood whose marriage to Jacky Coombe of the same overgrown village a few months ago drew much publicity, has now found out the grounds on which she is suing for divorce.

After Jacky made his intimate revelations, the divorce was held in his favor. He was holding in "Yes, I'll be a success," said Shapiro, a few days ago to a waiting world, "but I don't know what the grounds will be. My lawyers haven't told me yet."

Now Betty announces the grounds: "will be 'mental cruelty.'" At first sight this seems an impossibility, but a very little cruelty may go a long way on the mind of a Hollywood actress.

A much more mentally endowing performer than the shapely Betty—Adrienne Allen, actress with Raymond Massey—received a divorce a month or less ago from the delineator of Abraham Lincoln. "Extreme cruelty" was the ground.

The socially prominent William Dwight Whitney of New York, who got a divorce, also on the ground of "extreme cruelty." You'd have thought on the general principle of "once bitten, twice shy" that these ladies after their terrible experience would have been loth to enter into the married state again. Perhaps women are more forgiving than men. Forgetting that the divorce of cruelty borne by each man, ex-Mr. Whitney two weeks ago married Mr. Massey, and ex-Mrs. Whitney married Mr. Whitney. Some people are gluttons for punishment—or else the price of cruelty is slightly made.

And now to another aspect of war. Having developed the multi-engine radial engine, which delivers 2,000 horsepower at an engine weight of about one pound to the horsepower, American aircraft researchers have had to create propellers to match.

Blades, shorter than the conventional type blades and of wood, are being made to the "electric fan" type of blade. The pitch is adjustable. Any boatman who has tried to sail with a propeller of this type, knowing how power propellers work, will be able to understand why one successfully balanced engine speed with reduction of "slip" will credit the claims for increased speed made by this type of propeller.

Another development of science which will increase safety in the air is a method of visible examination of alloys, so that the relation of the atoms can be seen. It follows from this that the principle of the old ultra-microscope developed in the ceramics industry by which solids were made visible. It sends a beam of X-rays into the metal instead of concentrated light; for vision it requires huge enlargements of photographs instead of the microscope.

For instance, duralumin, of which propeller blades are made, is an alloy of aluminum and copper. It was always thought that copper would disintegrate in the presence of water. This reveals why a blade under great stress might crystallize and break, through the copper atoms moving together and forming a fracture vein. Experiments are being made with other alloys to find one that will be proof against world movements of atoms.

There's a note of peace and justice in a war-torn world. This country last week ago was told that the American Friends Service Committee was withdrawing its agents from Spain because General Franco had refused to allow them to do so. A dozen shiploads of food, contributed by American Quakers and others, for the starving children of Spain, were being sent to the United States.

Mr. King: A Portrait

There surely can be no error so gross as that which suggests the prime minister of Canada is an intellectual leader devoid of the "rich human sympathies that graced Laurier or the impulsive idealism that marked D'Arcy McGee. No one who knows him could ever for a moment give credence to such a travesty of his character.

Observers on parliament hill at Ottawa often speak of the sentiment of the prime minister. A few years ago, a Conservative M.P. whose name may remain hidden in a merciful oblivion, made a speech in which he implied the House of Commons like a dinner-bell, with bowed head the shamed man sat in his place, his hopes and dreams a mockery of his dreams. Mr. Mackenzie King met him in the lobby, put his arms about him, and out of his melior wistful and unvalued experience, brought courage back to a man whose first rebuff in the House of Commons might have broken the spell of parliament for him forever.

The point is that Mr. King did not stop to ask himself whether the man who had bungled was a Tory or Liberal; he was downhearted, and he gave him a helping hand.

There is not a young member of parliament who cannot duplicate this story. All speak with one voice of his courtesy, his delicate tact, his sense of humor, his feeling for the right thing in the right way, and above all, his profound faith that in common counsel problems may be rubbed away that otherwise could never be solved.

His closest chum in his early manhood was a brilliant young man named Harper. One day Harper saw a girl and her escort got skating down the hill. He saw her fall. He went to her. That was the first time he had seen her, and he was not even introduced to them. With incredible speed he picked her up, carried her to the ice and fell into the freezing water. At the risk of his own life, Harper tried to save the couple, and when he found he could not, he lay back, leaving the girl to her fate, and went for help. Both Harper and the girl were drowned.

He decided a memorial should be built in Ottawa as a tribute to the heroism of his friend. All Ottawa was anxious to do something. Mr. Mackenzie King, who had been in Ottawa when the tragedy occurred, and after a campaign for funds, a memorial was unveiled on Parliament Hill at a ceremony presided by the presence of the governor-general of Canada and Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Mr. King, the man who had conceived the idea and created the organization, was in the background.

He thought it a crime against the memory of his friend to try to make personal capital for himself. He thought of the man who at the moment was the idol of Canada.

Only after the memorial had been built, did he think of the man who at the moment was the idol of Canada.

How many of the people at the Toronto banquet remember how his face lit up with joy as he talked to the people? He was greeted by the people as a hero. He was greeted by the people as a hero. He was greeted by the people as a hero.

But that is a sacred subject. Mr. King's private life is a subject which should be left alone. It is a subject which should be left alone. It is a subject which should be left alone.

On this Date
Twenty years ago today, on August 7, 1919, the Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King was elected leader of the Liberal party in place of Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

One of the best and most concise accounts of the 1919 convention is given by Hon. E. M. Macdonald in his Recollections.

"The spirit of Laurier seemed to overshadow the gathering. Every mention of his name was received with tremendous applause. When Sir Wilfrid Laurier came to the gallery to wait the convention he received a great ovation.

Four candidates were nominated: Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Hon. W. J. Macdonald, Hon. George P. Graham, and D. D. Mackenzie, who had acted as House leader in the session of 1919 after Sir Wilfrid's death. Mr. King was in his forty-seventh year and made a magnificent address, which was received enthusiastically.

In the first ballot the result showed Mr. King led, then Mr. Fielding, then Mr. Graham, then Mr. Mackenzie. The final ballot was held between Mr. King and Mr. Fielding. The former won and his nomination as leader was made unanimous motion. Mr. King was elected and Mr. Graham, amid great enthusiasm.

On this 20th anniversary of the beginning of the Great War (insofar as Canadians are concerned, it is not a date fitting that we who voluntarily placed ourselves at the service of Canada, in order to protect their lives and property, be reminded that we are classified as belligerents. It is an interesting thought, particularly as the classification is that of a member of the House of Parliament who would be affiliated with a new Moses to become a member of the ruling party in the next election. They would be thought of as wondering what Mr. Jacques and his party will do if Canada is threatened with invasion from the west. In the event that European conditions are only cleared up by war. Will they then immediately step to evangelize the opponents, or promise them 250 million if they lay down their arms and join in the new 'Utopia'?

Money value is not what one thinks one should get but what others will and can pay. Unless products or services are sold, no money is received or paid out. The basis of democratic institutions is freedom to trade efforts by mutual agreement, according to the supplies available and the demand from consumers for them. In the final analysis no more is saleable than the consumer ability to buy. Money values are what consumers can pay.

In setting prices of factory products into the war, mutual agreement between producers and consumers has been overlooked or under-estimated. The age-old basic principle of merchandising for permanent trade has been changed to a system of arbitrary prices which weak down consumers cannot pay.

FUEL BOARD IS RESTRAINED BY INJUNCTION

Enforcement of Ordered Reduction in Gasoline Prices Prevented

VICTORIA, Aug. 7.—For the second time in less than a year, the British Columbia oil and petroleum products control board has been prevented from enforcing an ordered reduction in gasoline prices.

Oil companies operating in the province Saturday obtained an injunction from Chief Justice Archer Martin restraining the fuel board from going into effect an order to reduce gasoline prices three cents a gallon. The order was to have been effective today and would have meant a reduction in standard Vancouver retail prices from 24 to 21 cents a gallon.

Last October, the fuel board's original price reduction order was prevented from going into effect by an injunction granted by Mr. Justice A. M. Manson in supreme court. The order was rescinded later while the legality of the British Columbia oil and petroleum products control act was being contested in provincial courts. Last June, the British Columbia

PASTOR URGES YOUNG IDEALS SERMON HERE

Rev. Thompson Takes Over
Pulpit At Metropolitan United

Stressing the necessity of people remaining young in mind and heart and keeping faith with the vision and ideals of their youth, Rev. R. McHenry Thompson began his sermon at the Metropolitan United church Sunday when he addressed the combined congregations of Knox and Metropolitan churches.

Before the world can be saved it must produce a generation of young people who will carry the ideals of youth over into middle age, or produce a generation of middle-aged people who will have the courage, new life and vision of youth and use them in the place of power and influence, which they command, said Mr. Thompson.

Youth alone cannot save the world, he stated, for youth is not in a position of power in national and international affairs. The controlling position is held by people of middle age or older.

OLD IDEALS

Too many middle aged people today have become old in heart as well as in years, declared the new pastor. They are cynical and pessimistic. To save themselves from the world of the future, they must rekindle their enthusiasms, devotion and faith on the altar of their forgotten youth.

At the evening service, Mr. Thompson spoke on the words of Jesus, "Neither east ye your world, nor will ye receive it."

Mr. Bishop Walworth, A.C.M. of London, Ont., was the guest soloist at the morning service, while Joseph Booke was soloist during the evening. W. M. Mauer, musical director at Knox United church, was organist.

Knox and Metropolitan churches will hold joint services at the end of August, with Mr. Thompson officiating at the pulpits at both services.

Rev. J. B. Skene of Toronto, who has been supplying for Rev. R. K. Cameron at First Presbyterian church, addressed a large congregation at the church Sunday.

At the evening service he continued A. B. C. of "Friends of Jesus," last Sunday, August 13. Mr. Skene will conduct his first service at First Presbyterian, where he has occupied the pulpit since July 9.

Public worship will be held at Strathcona Presbyterian church by Rev. E. J. Barton Sunday morning, while Mrs. J. D. Smith will lead the service at the same place.

Rev. F. Woodworth occupied the pulpit at Garneau United church on Sunday. Mrs. George Hudson was soloist during the morning service, while Mrs. W. L. C. Low addressed the congregation at the evening service.

In Pulpit ROSE BLOOMS ARE JUDGED ANNUAL SHOW

Public Views Flowers In Capitol Theatre's Display Here

Seventeen annual Capital theatre Rose show was opened in the Capitol Theatre Sunday afternoon, with a display of blooms and a wave of fragrance filling the theatre foyer.

Judging was completed by E. J. Skene between 2 and 3 p.m. and prizes awarded for the many fine specimens of the exhibition.

Three diverse conditions which included a half a dozen weeks ago and intense heat recently, there was a beautiful display and top-notch specimens were shown.

Annual Bulletin trophy for the first bloom in the show was awarded to Mrs. J. B. Skene, who was not available in time for publication in this edition.

Walter Wilson, Capitol theatre manager, whose motto for years has been "supplies for Rev. R. K. Cameron," and Alfred Pike, manager of the show show, both were highly pleased with the exhibition.

Show winners will be announced in the Bulletin Sunday.

GOLDIE HILLER PLACES FIRST TYPING SPEED

Semi-Finals Held In Contest For Free Trip To Toronto Fair

Fifty tireless typewriters raced through typewritten afternoons in the semi-finals of the Edmonton elimination contest of the Canadian National Typing Association.

Miss Goldie Hiller, who has been leading ever since the second elimination test, again finished in front with Miss Dorothy Van Velsor second.

A much smaller list was given in this heat by Miss Beatrice Green, typing instructor at Alberta college who has been supervising elimination, and as a consequence scores were slightly lower than in the previous test.

Others who were competing in Saturday's test were Miss Jean Irvine, Miss Glen Clarke, Miss Kathleen James, Miss Volberg-Jorgensen and Miss Margaret Norn.

Winner, who will be selected at a final elimination this week, will receive a free, all-expense trip to the Canadian National Typing Association to join a team of 12 Canadian typists who will compete with a United States team.

German-Canadians Celebrate At City Picnic

Annual Picnic Held At Victoria Park

Approximately 2,500 persons from all parts of the province gathered at Victoria Park Sunday to celebrate the annual picnic sponsored by the United German-Canadian Societies of Alberta. While speeches were the highlight of the get-together, children found other ways of amusing themselves as a full card of races and other sports events were staged.

FARMERS HERE ADVISED RAISE CATTLE, HOGS

Chicago Livestock Dealer
Says This Is Ideal Producing Country

"Most farmers in this country deserve to starve to death—they are so lazy," declared William (Bill) Frank, livestock commission dealer from Chicago, who is completing a buying trip here.

"Every farmer here should raise some cattle and hogs," he said. "They could keep them cheaply and make a good profit on their grain that way. They shouldn't try to sell all their grain at present prices."
